Work experience: Teaching and research

AUTUMN 2022,
2023 & 2024

STUDENT INSTRUCTOR, DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE, AU
HEALTH SOCIOLOGY, POLITICAL SOCIOLOGY AND INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

SPRING 2024

As Teaching Assistant in both Health Sociology on the faculty of Health Sciences (Autumn 2022), and in Political Sociology (Autumn 2023, 2024) and International Relations (Spring 2024) on the department of Political Science I have worked closely with students on sociological and international perspectives and theoretical discussions for the benefit of both me and the students. Further, it has been really important for me to work tangibly with both the student's oral and written competences, while together creating a safe and learn-promoting teaching environment: from my experience you may tell that I love teaching!

MARCH 2023 –
AUGUST 2024

STUDENT ASSISTANT, DEPARTMENT OF POLITICAL SCIENCE, AU
QUALITATIVE CODING, TYPOLOGY DEVELOPMENT AND DATA TRAINING

With professors Carsten Jensen and Henrik Seeberg, I worked as a student assistant on a data project. My work consisted of qualitatively coding both Danish and British parliamentary questions, algorithm development, machine learning and representation of data results. From this, I have gained valuable knowledge in how big data and extensive research projects take shape.

MARCH 2023 –
NOVEMBER 2023

AUTHOR AND UNPAID STUDENT ASSISTANT
ROSKILDE UNIVERSITY CENTRE (RUC)

In 2023 I wrote an article to the Danish journal "Samfundsøkonomen" with Professor Hanne Marlene Dahl from Roskilde University Centre (RUC) about the extent of a care crisis in the Danish welfare state. My work centered around data processing, literature reviews, data analysis as well as co-authorship. This substantially strengthened a great number of my competences such as complying with deadlines, working with greater amounts of scientific literature and formulating original and clear arguments. Further, working with peer-feedback gave me key insights into the workings of professional academia.

MAIN BOARD MEMBER AND LOCAL TREASURER IN RED-GREEN YOUTH

Since the spring of 2020 I have been active in the political youth organisation Red-Green Youth. Locally: organising, treasurer, getting a bank account and mobilising. As part of the main board, I made decisions of more long-term character.
